Description: The monument is a tall column of granite commemorating all airmen who have lost their lives performing their duties and specifically those who lost their lives in accidents in 1978 and 1992. One face commemorates those who died in an accident on November 30, 1978, and the other commemorates those who died in an accident on April 28, 1992. The 1978 commemoration bears the inscribed image of an eagle with its wings outspread. The 1992 commemoration bears the inscribed image of C-130 aircraft.

Inscription:

CLARK. JR.

Dedication date: 4/28/1993

Materials & Techniques: Granite

Sponsor: 317 Troop Carrier Veterans' Group

Unveiling & Dedication: Surviving family of the airmen were present at the unveiling, which served as a memorial service dedicated to those faithful soldiers who lost their lives tragically.

Subject notes: The Monument was dedicated to two groups of "Pope Airmen" who lost their lives in accidents while serving their country. On November 30, 1978 a C-130 crashed approximately 34 miles west of Charleston, S.C. On April 29, 1992, a C-130 crashed into Blewett Falls Lake, N.C. Witnesses said the cargo plane circled the lake for about fifteen minutes before rolling over and plunging into the water. All nine crew were killed.

Location: The monument is located along a walkway next to Reilly Road in Fort Bragg.

Landscape: The marker rests atop a circular stone base within a stone walkway, with woods bordering the site. A number of other memorials, including the Lt. Harley Pope Monument, are located nearby along the walkway. Four retired aircraft are displayed on the other side of Reilly Road.
