In Congress, July 4, 1776, a declaration by the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled.

When in the Course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed ^[2] by their Creator with certain unalienable ^[3] Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving ^[4] their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence ^[5], indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient ^[6] causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations ^[7], pursuing invariably the same Objectives ^[8] a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism ^[9], it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny ^[10] over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid ^[11] world.

He has refused his Assent ^[12] to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would delinquish ^[13] the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable ^[14] to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance ^[15] with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation ^[16], have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured ^[17] to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization ^[18] of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefit of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province establishing therein an Arbitrary ^[19] government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these

Colonies

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered ^[20] our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation ^[21], and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & Perfidy ^[22] scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ^[23] ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren ^[24], or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections ^[25] amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress ^[26] in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction ^[27] over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity ^[28], and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity ^[29]. We must, therefore, acquiesce ^[30] in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude ^[31] of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States, that they are Absolved from all Allegiance ^[32] to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce ^[33], and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. — And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence ^[34], we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred ^[35] Honor.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a people to dissolve the political bands which connect them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such Form, as to them shall seem best, for the Security and Happiness. Prudence in this and in all other Cases, shall dictate the most proper Measures to be taken in a particular Situation.

And we deem it necessary to state that the Declaration of Independence is a declaration of the rights of the Colonies, and not a declaration of the rights of the People. The Colonies are the only parties to the Declaration, and the only parties who are bound by it. The People are the subjects of the Declaration, and not the parties to it.

When the Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, solemnly published on the 7th day of August 1776, a Declaration of Independence, they declared that they were united into one Nation, and that they were entitled to all the Rights and Liberties of independent States. They declared that they were separated from Great Britain, and that they were no longer under her dominion. They declared that they were free, sovereign, and independent States, and that they were entitled to all the Rights and Liberties of independent States.

And we deem it necessary to state that the Declaration of Independence is a declaration of the rights of the Colonies, and not a declaration of the rights of the People. The Colonies are the only parties to the Declaration, and the only parties who are bound by it. The People are the subjects of the Declaration, and not the parties to it.

We therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, solemnly publish on this 4th day of July 1776, a Declaration of Independence, and that these United States are, of right, free and independent States, that they are separated from all dependence on Great Britain, and that they are entitled to all the Rights and Liberties of independent States.
