Christian Revival

In the first decades of the nineteenth century, the Second Great Awakening swept the United States, bringing new interest in religion and in social reform. Across the country, ministers held revivals, most often in the form of camp meetings. At these revivals, people experienced conversion and salvation in ways that were often quite dramatic. In the South, this period is sometimes called the “Great Revival.”

Both white and black North Carolinians experienced the Revival, but in different ways. In this chapter we’ll read the experiences of some men and women who participated in early nineteenth-century revivals, both as ministers and as converts, and we’ll explore the reasons for their participation and conversion and the impact their experiences had on their lives.

Section Contents

- The Second Great Awakening
- Into the Wilderness: Circuit Riders Take Religion to the People
- A Camp Meeting Scene
- What a Religious Revival is
- Samuel M’Corkle and Early June Sermons of 1802
- Rock Springs Camp Meeting
- “Be saved from the jaws of an angry hell”
- Preaching Obedience to Slaves
- Elizabeth, a Colored Minister of the Gospel, Born in Slavery
- John Chavis
- The Development of Sacred Singing

User Tags:
- camp meetings
- Chapter Cover
- history
- North Carolina
- North Carolina History
- religion
- Students
- Teachers
- Creative Commons BY-NC-SA

From:
LEARN NC North Carolina History: A Digital Textbook

Copyright Date:
2009

Related Topics:
- The Second Great Awakening

Primary Sources:
Methodist camp meeting, March 1, 1819

3 January 2018

Source URL: https://www.ncpedia.org/anchor/christian-revival

Links