Antebellum Homes and Plantations

The most popular images of antebellum life are grand plantation houses — but, as we’ve seen, a tiny fraction of North Carolinians lived in such houses. North Carolinians were mostly poor white farmers (about 75% of the white population in 1860) and enslaved black laborers (about one-third of North Carolina’s total population in 1860). Many of these people did not own land, much less their own homes.

Even the smallest of the historic houses would have been home to a farmer who owned land in North Carolina. The very poorest lived in houses that were not designed to survive. They were made of lower-quality materials, built on someone else’s land, or were not built by a professional carpenter. These factors decreased a home’s chance of survival.

Included in this page's panels are resources that describe life in Antebellum North Carolina for all social classes. There are also resources that describe the types of homes in which the people of Antebellum North Carolina would have lived.

User Tags:
antebellum architecture history
North Carolina
North Carolina History
Page plantations
Students
Teachers
All Rights Reserved
From:
LEARN NC North Carolina History: A Digital Textbook
Copyright Date:
2009
Places:

Hope Plantation in Bertie County, North Carolina. Built circa 1803.
Antebellum Sites in North Carolina from Research Laboratories of Archaeology, UNC Chapel Hill

Antebellum Sites in Historic Raleigh from the Raleigh Historic Development Commission

Plantations of North Carolina from the NCGenWeb Project

Related Topics:

"Social Classes in Antebellum North Carolina"
from The Road to Secession, NC Historic Sites

Slavery in Antebellum North Carolina (1784-1860)
from the Digital Library on American Slavery, UNC Greensboro

3 January 2018

Source URL: https://www.ncpedia.org/anchor/antebellum-homes-and

Links