

Farmville High School

Farmville High School

This photograph of Farmville High was taken around 1951. The school was for only White students. Note the difference between Farmville and Moton High, on <https://www.ncpedia.org/media/robert-russa-morton-high>. Despite the passing of Brown v. Board, Virginia and Prince Edward County refused to desegregate and closed their public schools from 1959 to 1964.

Citation (Chicago Style):

"Exterior View of Farmville High School", ca. 1951; Civil Action No. 1333; Dorothy E. Davis, et al. v. County School Board of Prince Edward County et al.; Civil Case Files, 1938 - 12/31/1990; Records of District Courts of the United States, Record Group 21; National Archives at Philadelphia, Philadelphia, PA.
<https://www.docsteach.org/documents/document/farmville-exterior> . Accessed November 29, 2018.

Available at:

<https://www.docsteach.org/documents/document/farmville-exterior>

Read the related article: Brown v. Board of Education and School Desegregation

Usage Statement:

Public Domain

Public Domain is a copyright term that is often used when talking about copyright for creative works. Under U.S. copyright law, individual items that are in the public domain are items that are no longer protected by copyright law. This means that you do not need to request permission to re-use, re-publish or even change a copy of the item. Items enter the public domain under U.S. copyright law for a number of reasons: the original copyright may have expired; the item was created by the U.S. Federal Government or other governmental entity that views the things it creates as in the public domain; the work was never protected by copyright for some other reason related to how it was produced (for example, it was a speech that wasn't written down or recorded); or the work doesn't have enough originality to make it eligible for copyright protection.