

Moses Ashley Curtis diary, September 1831 (page 7 of 7)

Sept. 21st — Four of the insurgents have been condemned in W. & have received the reward & acknowledged guilt. One I was deeply affected at his situation. Dan was horribly indifferent, & I believe had enticed some or all I to a participation in the plot. Their heads are sticking on poles in different parts of the town. Four more are to be shot to day or to morrow. In Duplin County one black has been roasted & others otherways executed.

Usage Statement:

Public Domain

Public Domain is a copyright term that is often used when talking about copyright for creative works. Under U.S. copyright law, individual items that are in the public domain are items that are no longer protected by copyright law. This means that you do not need to request permission to re-use, re-publish or even change a copy of the item. Items enter the public domain under U.S. copyright law for a number of reasons: the original copyright may have expired; the item was created by the U.S. Federal Government or other governmental entity that views the things it creates as in the public domain; the work was never protected by copyright for some other reason related to how it was produced (for example, it was a speech that wasn't written down or recorded); or the work doesn't have enough originality to make it eligible for copyright protection.

Source URL: <https://www.ncpedia.org/media/moses-ashley-curtis-diary>