<sup>[2]</sup>Ruth Faison Shaw, teacher, artist, lecturer, and originator of finger painting, was born in Kenansville, the daughter of the Reverend William M., a Presbyterian minister, and Alberta Faison Shaw. She was related to the Hicks, Thomson, Moore, Ivey, and Bannerman families.

After attending elementary school in Cabarrus County <sup>[3]</sup> and the James Sprunt Institute in Kenansville, she entered the Peabody Institute of Music <sup>[4]</sup> in Baltimore. She taught elementary school in Transylvania County <sup>[5]</sup> and music in Kenansville and Wilmington <sup>[6]</sup>. During World War I she did YMCA <sup>[7]</sup> work in France. In Italy from 1922 to 1932, she directed the Shaw School in Rome for English-speaking boys and girls. While there, she discovered the art of finger painting and also devised a formula for making finger paint.

In 1932 Miss Shaw taught for a time at the University of Paris and then set up a finger painting studio in New York and later at Cape Cod, where she taught finger painting. During World War II she entertained servicemen with finger painting demonstrations, and for two years she worked with mental patients at the Menninger Psychiatric Clinic in Topeka, Kans. She was the author of Finger Painting: A Perfect Medium for Self-Expression <sup>[8]</sup> (1934).

In 1959 Miss Shaw moved to Chapel Hill and was employed as a consultant in the Department of Psychiatry, where she remained until her death. She lectured and gave finger painting demonstrations to groups in person as well as on television. She was buried in Oakdale Cemetery <sup>[9]</sup>, Wilmington. Her large collection of finger paintings was given to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill <sup>[10]</sup>.
